Commercial Bank,
Sydney, 15th October, 1847.

TO THE PROPRIETORS OF THE COMMERCIAL BANKING COMPANY OF SYDNEY.

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to inform you that the Directors of this Bank have been legally advised that the tenour of the resolution passed by the proprietors at a meeting held on the 2nd April, 1847, by which the partnership was extended for a period of seven years, will have the effect of preventing any further extension of the same after the 1st November, 1848.

Under these circumstances, the Directors announce to the proprietors their intention to take immediate steps for submitting to the special meeting of the shareholders convened for the 1st November next, a proposal for forming a new and extended Company, on such a footing as shall, at the same time, secure the interests of the proprietors, and the confidence of the public.

I have the honour to be,
Gentlemen,
Your most obedient servant,
EDWARD KNOX,
Managing Director.

By order of the Right Worshipful the Mayor,
JOHN RAE,
6824 Town Clerk.

PHILLIP WARD.

THE friends and supporters of Mr. R. Hancock are respectfully requested to attend a meeting at the Wellington Inn, George-street South, This Day, Thursday, the 28th instant, at seven o'clock P.M. for the purpose of insuring the election of Mr. Hancock as Councillor for this Ward.

October 28. 6766

GENTLEMEN ELECTORS OF BOURKE WARD.

MR. J. COHEN, our present Candidate for Bourke Ward, having repudiated the charge of being the originator of Veritas, has, from this day, my unqualified support, as I do not like dissimulation.

LUKE MILWARD,
6822 524, George-street.

ELECTORS OF BOURKE WARD.

THE friends and supporters of Mr. J. P. Josephson are respectfully invited to attend a meeting, to be held at Gill's Family Hotel, this evening, at seven o'clock, when substantial reasons will be adduced, showing why Mr. Josephson is the most eligible of the two candidates to represent this ward.

By order of the Committee,
J. G. RAPHAEL,
Honorary Secretary.
Thursday, October 28. 6826

ELECTORS OF BRISBANE WARD.

GIPPS WARD.

A MEETING of Mr. George Paton's Committee and all other friends, (Electors of the above Ward,) will be held, at Mr. Wells's, the Lord Nelson Hotel, corner of Kent and Argyle streets, on FRIDAY EVENING, the 29th instant, at half-past 7 o'clock, to make all necessary arrangements to secure his election.

Sydney, October 28. 6847

ELECTORS OF BRISBANE WARD.

GENTLEMEN,—Accept my thanks for the numerous promises of support I have received during my canvass, and, as far as time will permit, I will do myself the honour of personally soliciting your votes; and believe me I have only one interest to serve—that of the citizens of Sydney; as a representative of no inconsiderable property in your Ward, I may venture to hope for the support of all those who have an interest at stake.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your faithful friend,
6859 GREGORY BOARD.

MACQUARIE WARD.

To Mr. George Wilkie.

SIR,—We, the undersigned Citizens of Macquarie Ward, understanding that you are about to retire by rotation from the City Council, and being well satisfied with your attention to the interests of the city during the time you have occupied a seat in the Council, beg respectfully to request that you will allow yourself to be put in nomination at the forthcoming election, to represent our interests for the above Ward; and we pledge ourselves to use our best endeavours to promote your election.

To the Electors of Macquarie Ward, who have signed the above requisition.

Gentlemen,—I beg to return you my grateful thanks for the expression of your satisfaction with my attention to the interests of the city during the time I have occupied a seat in the Council. I feel highly honoured at your nominating me as a candidate to represent your Ward at the forthcoming election, and should I be returned as your representative, I promise you that both my time and attention shall, as heretofore, be devoted to your interests.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your faithful and obedient servant,
GEORGE WILKIE.
George-street, September 29. 6578

TO THE ELECTORS OF BOURKE WARD.

MR. JOSEPHSON'S Committee have much pleasure in informing the Electors of Bourke Ward, that from the number of votes at the present time actually promised to Mr. J., they feel assured that he will be elected on the 1st November next, by a very large majority.

By order of the Committee,
J. G. RAPHAEL,
Honorary Secretary.
October 16. 6452

TO THE ELECTORS OF BOURKE WARD.

GENTLEMEN,—I respectfully and earnestly entreat your perusal of Mr. J. P. Josephson's letter, addressed "to the Electors of Bourke Ward," published in the Sydney Morning Herald, on Tuesday, the 26th instant.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient and faithful servant,
J. J. COHEN.
Sydney, 28th October. 6827

TO THE ELECTORS OF BRISBANE WARD.

GENTLEMEN,—Allow me to return my best thanks to those electors who solicited me to become a candidate for the representation of your ward; also to those who so kindly promised me their support and influence at the ensuing election for city honours. But as two gentlemen have now come forward, with what appears to be (amongst a large body of electors) the essential requisites for a City Councillor—namely, that of having stakes in the ward, I am induced to decline the honour of contesting the election with gentlemen possessing such superior qualifications and advantages over myself.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
6829 H. SMITHERS HAYES.

PROSPECTUS.—THE EVENING COURIER, to be published twice (and hereafter six times) a week. Price only threepence a number, or sixpence a week.

As an evening journal, the Courier would often anticipate the morning papers, by nearly a whole day—not only in Sydney, but also in Parramatta, Windsor, Liverpool, Maitland, Newcastle, Bathurst, Goulburn, Berrima, Melbourne, &c., and throughout the whole of the interior,—since it would contain all the foreign intelligence which might arrive during the usual hours of receiving such—namely, from six in the morning to three o'clock in the afternoon—besides the country news coming in by the early mails, which reach Sydney rather too late for the morning publications.

The Courier will be conducted by a gentleman who was formerly sole proprietor of an influential London Daily Journal, and who has been mainly instrumental in effecting the late removal of a very serious obstacle to the advancement of Australia, through the mighty agency of steam—a circumstance constituting (it is hoped) some slight claim to the support of the public—as an omen, at least, of further services, proportioned to the increased power of rendering them.

Several able writers having already promised their valuable aid and support, the public may be assured that with respect to talent, consistency, and early intelligence, the Courier will not be surpassed by any journal in the colony.

Subscription lists will be found at most of the auctioneers', booksellers', and other establishments in Sydney—and the paper will be commenced immediately on a number of names being subscribed sufficient to defray the expense. 6830

SIR JOSEPH BANKS HOTEL, BOTANY BAY.

WILLIAM BEAUMONT returns his most grateful acknowledgements to those ladies and gentlemen who have honoured him with their distinguished patronage; and begs respectfully to state that the Hotel has undergone complete renovation as regards its in and external decoration, and that the indefatigable care and study of all connected with the establishment will be most assiduously exerted to render it in every respect worthy of their future patronage and support.

W. B. takes advantage of this opportunity also to lay before those ladies and gentlemen who have not yet visited the Hotel, a short statement of the peculiar claims it possesses over every other establishment of its kind in the colony, as well as briefly to allude to those particulars which should always be pre-eminent and characteristic features in the management, and general conduct of an Hotel, the proprietor of which aims at earning the support of the superior classes of society.

Foremost in the list of its peculiarities stand the many advantages consequent upon its unequalled beauty of situation, commanding in a degree to be found nowhere else in the colony, all that is desirable in a marine residence, added to facilities provided for the enjoyment of a country life.

Those fond of the amusements of boating and fishing will be fully enabled to appreciate the convenience afforded for these purposes by the jetty which extends an eighth of a mile into the bay, thereby ensuring perfect safety and comfort in embarking or disembarking without reference to the state of the tide.

The jetty also affords a delightful promenade, terminating in a stage on which are erected a sufficient number of seats to accommodate twenty-five persons at the same time.

A boat will be kept constantly in waiting for the convenience of visitors should more than one boat be required it will only be necessary to give a few hours' notice to insure their attendance.

A safe and commodious bathing-house is in course of erection, and will shortly be completed.

Additional stables have been recently erected, whereby the complaint of scarcity of stalls occasionally made last summer will for the future be entirely obviated.

Connected with the Hotel, but sufficiently removed from the main building to avoid the bustle of business, there is a neat little cottage, large enough to accommodate a family, and particularly suitable for an invalid, or other person needing quiet and retirement.

The garden is extensive and tastefully laid out; in it will be found some choice specimens of floriculture; there are also shady and agreeable walks in the parts not immediately under cultivation.

A magnificent pair of black Swans, and a fine pair of Emus, as well as some specimens of the parrot kind, which are kept in front of the House, will afford amusement to persons who are not familiar with these varieties of the ornithology of New South Wales.

Added to the general beauty of the bay, there are some objects of particular curiosity, such as La Perouse's Monument, and the Tower at the North Head, Captain Cook's commemoration plate, &c., all of which are within a short distance from the hotel.

For information on the subject of what amount of credit is due to the establishment for its internal cleanliness, and the assiduous attention with which its patrons are treated; parties intending to reside at the hotel are respectfully referred to any lady or gentleman who has had an opportunity of knowing.

Every further particular may be ascertained, and orders for dinners, luncheons, &c., attended to by the parties interested communicating with W. Beaumont, Buildings No. 221, Castlereagh-street. 4378

MARINE HOTEL, WOLLONGONG.

S. RUSSELL begs to acquaint the inhabitants of Illawarra, and all who are desirous of visiting that highly interesting and beautiful district, either for pleasure or health, that he has opened the above large establishment, relying on a generous public for support.

S. RUSSELL flatters himself that families and gentlemen will find in his house all that they can desire, having been expressly fitted up, with an adjoining cottage, for their use.

To invalids it offers many advantages, for it is within three minutes' walk of the steamboat and also of the sea beach. The views from its verandahs are most enchanting, Mounts Keera and Kembla in front, and the sea and Five Islands in the rear.

S. RUSSELL, to induce parties to remain at so delightful a spot, "the Brighton of Sydney, for health and recreation," is determined to make his charges moderate.

Wines and English bottled beer of excellent quality, at low prices.

Visitors from Sydney may reckon on always finding accommodation in his house, there being six sitting and nine bed rooms.

N.B.—Saddle horses and carriages on hire. Single persons respectably entertained at two guineas per week. Should there be a sufficient number of persons and would make it agreeable to form a public table, the charges would be considerably less.—Families requiring apartments with sitting-rooms, charged according to the time of occupation.

☞ Servants' attendance 1s. per day. 6625

HIGHLY IMPORTANT.

TO SETTLERS AND OTHERS IN THE MORETON BAY DISTRICT.

MR. R. J. SMITH, of the Steam Boiling Down Establishment, Kangaroo Point, begs to inform the settlers in the above district, that he has accepted Thomas Barker and Co.'s agency for the sale of their flour.

A large stock of flour being always on hand at the above establishment, settlers, and storekeepers may always depend upon being supplied with all qualities at the lowest market rates.

Kangaroo Point, March 27. 5066

GOULBURN AND QUEANBEYAN. SELLING OFF.

BENJAMIN AND MOSES, proprietors of the Argyle Stores, Goulburn, and Goulburn Stores, Queanbeyan, beg respectfully to inform their numerous connections and the public in general that they are now SELLING OFF the whole of the extensive stock of the above establishment AT LESS THAN COST PRICE, for cash only.

B. and M. assure the public that they are determined to act as above stated, in selling off at less than cost price, and further state they have only a limited period to do so; this is therefore no puffing advertisement, and they feel confident one visit will convince buyers of this fact.

(No business transacted from Friday evening until Saturday evening.)

N.B.—The above extensive Stores, with several Town Allotments in Goulburn, Braidwood, Bungadore, Windsor, Moreton Bay, &c., as well as their well-known Argyle Steam Boiling Establishment, will shortly be submitted by auction to public competition, of which due notice will be given. 6869

NOTICE.

E. FORD begs to return his sincere thanks to his friends and the public for the liberal support he received during the time he was carrying on business in Kent-street North, as grocer and general dealer, and to apprise them that he has disposed of the same to Mr. James Maguire, whom he can confidently recommend, and hopes their kind patronage will be extended to him.

The undersigned requests that all parties indebted to him will settle the same immediately, also that all parties having claims against him will present the same for liquidation.

E. FORD,
6767 Kent-street North.

JAMES MAGUIRE, in acquainting his friends and the public that he has taken the above-mentioned General Grocery and Provision Store, hopes that by a close attention to business, and by keeping articles of the very best quality always on hand, he will receive that liberal support bestowed upon his predecessor; suffice it to say, his greatest ambition will be to gain the good opinion of his patrons by conducting his business on a respectable, even-handed, and sound system, always observing an anxious desire to please by attention and civility, and selling goods at such prices that cannot fail to give universal satisfaction.

In addition to the stock the undersigned purchased from Mr. Ford, he has received a fresh supply of every article in the grocery line.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Wednesday.

Insolvency.

Before the full Court.

IN RE FRANCIS ELLARD.

Opposition had been made in the Court below to the granting by the Chief Commissioner to this insolvent his certificate of discharge. Many grounds were then alleged, and the Chief Commissioner, without delivering a specific opinion on the others, found one fatal, and therefore absolutely refused the granting the certificate.

Against this decision the insolvent now appealed. The ground on which he had been refused his certificate was this—that a Mr. Hickey, in the year 1844, had intrusted the insolvent, as it was alleged, under a del credere commission, to sell a certain number of pianos, which the insolvent by evidence, admitted had been sold for the sum of £560—which amount had not been paid to Hickey or his agent; but the amount had been expended in his, the insolvent's, business; but alleging as a reason, that it was understood between him and Hickey that Hickey should not receive the amount until he should return from England. This arrangement, however, was not admitted by Hickey to have been the case, and in the mean time he had been deprived of his money.

Mr. Michie appeared for the insolvent, and Mr. Fisher for Hickey and another opposing creditor.

For the insolvent it was submitted, in reference to the only ground on which the insolvent had been refused his certificate, that Hickey was not in a position, below or now, to oppose, for his own estate had been assigned to trustees; and if any person could oppose, as to this transaction, it was Hickey's trustee, citing a decision in this Court of exparte Lyons, in re Prosper de Mestre. It was also contended, that this particular transaction did not come within the meaning of the Insolvent Act. It would seem that the insolvent had had a series of dealings with Hickey respecting the sale of pianos, on commission; this, therefore, was not an individual transaction; and that the Insolvent Courts in England, on a case like this, where the insolvent is charged with expending to his own use moneys realised from property intrusted to him for sale, always make a distinction between a series of dealings and a single dealing. Cooke's Insolvent Practice, 262, 205; and the same Courts, in the like case, require some clear evidence to show that the insolvent had guilty intentions in retaining the property; the evidence in this case would scarcely warrant that conclusion; for here at least the insolvent had a claim upon the creditor for a commission. Besides, Hickey is now precluded from his present ground of opposition; for, when the insolvent's estate was sequestrated on a former occasion, the trustee of Hickey, agreed with the now insolvent to take a composition of 6s. 8d. in respect of this identical transaction. And lastly, on the remaining ground, as to the very terms under which the pianos were delivered to the insolvent to sell, whether on a del credere commission or not, there was now no satisfactory evidence; the insolvent swears one way, and the creditor in the other. And looking at the whole conduct of the insolvent he was entitled to his certificate.

His Honor the Chief Justice, without calling upon Mr. Fisher, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that they were all convinced that here there had been a gross breach of trust; and therefore, that the Chief Commissioner had acted wisely in refusing the certificate. Here there was no doubt the insolvent had been entrusted to sell the pianos, under a del credere commission; he admits he sold; and yet he had made use of the proceeds to his own benefit. The argument that this particular creditor was precluded from opposing, on the score that a composition had been accepted, in respect of the same transaction [illegible] a former sequestration, and which had been set aside, would not avail the insolvent. A duty was cast upon the Court to ascertain whether the insolvent had so conducted himself that he was entitled to the benefit of the Act; the Court thought that he had not made out a case for that benefit.

Appeal dismissed.

HILL v. PATTRICK AND ANOTHER.

This was an action of assumpsit. The declaration stated that the plaintiff bought of the defendant fifty tons of fine flour, but that fifty tons of inferior was delivered. The case was tried in August last, when the Jury found for the plaintiff, damages £100. The case now came before the Court on a motion for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict was against evidence, and that His Honor the Chief Justice had improperly admitted evidence as to the condition of other flour, (which, together with this, the subject of the present action, went to India in the schooner Shamrock), upon its arrival in India.

Messrs. Broadhurst and Holroyd appeared in support of the motion for a new trial, and Mr. Foster contra.

His Honor the Chief Justice said, that he was of opinion, that upon balancing the evidence adduced at the trial, both by the plaintiff and the defendants, as to the main issue at trial, viz.—as to the fineness of the flour when delivered in Sydney, that the balance was in favour of the defendants, and therefore a new trial ought to be had in the case. He further said, that he thought that he had rightly and properly admitted the evidence as to the condition in which the other flour arrived in India, going in the same vessel, and going through the same vicissitudes. It was true, it was not very weighty evidence, but it was such that ought not to be excluded from the consideration of the Jury.

His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson intimated that without departing from any former rules recognised by this Court, upon a careful perusal of the evidence adduced at the trial he was of opinion that substantial justice had not been had in the cause, and therefore a new trial ought to be had between the parties. And he was further of opinion that the chief evidence adduced on the part of the plaintiff was at the best mere matter of opinion, and if it had been objected to on that ground the objection would doubtlessly have succeeded; and then the plaintiff's case would scarcely have been substantiated.

His Honor Mr. Justice Therry, in effect, delivered judgment in conformity with the judgments of the other members of the Court.

Wednesday.

(In the Supreme Court.)

On the motion of the Chief Commissioner, the certificate granted to Robert Smeales was confirmed.

The proceedings of the Court below, in the matters of Michael M'Cardell and Francis Ellard, withholding their certificates of discharge under the Act, were also confirmed by their Honors the Judges.

ABSTRACT OF THE ACTS OF COUNCIL PASSED IN THE SESSION OF 1847.

No. 4.—Lien on Wool Act.—An Act to repeal an Act intituled "An Act to give a preferable lien on Wool from season to season, and to make mortgages of sheep, cattle, and horses valid, without delivery to the mortgagee," and to substitute for a limited time other provisions in lieu thereof.—The 1st clause repeals the Lien on Wool Act, 7th Victoria, No. 3. The 2nd clause enacts that any person making a bona fide advance to any proprietor of sheep, on condition of receiving in payment or as security for such advance the wool of the then next ensuing clip, and duly registering the agreement relative thereto, shall be entitled to the whole of the wool mentioned in such agreement, whether such advance be made before, at, or after, the granting of such preferable lien; provided that when the advance is repaid the property and possession of the wool shall revest in the proprietor of the sheep. The 3rd clause enacts that the preferable lien of any licence making the same shall not be affected by any subsequent sale or mortgage, nor by the subsequent insolvency of the licensor; and that if such licensor, subsequent mortgagee, incumbrancer, or trustee or other claimant, or possessor, of the sheep for which such preferable lien shall have been granted, shall refuse or neglect to shear the said sheep and to deliver the wool to the licensee, it shall be lawful for the licensee to take possession of the said sheep, and to mark and shear the same, and to convey the wool to his abode, the cost of which proceedings shall be incorporated with the amount secured by such lien. Clause 4 enacts that all mortgages of sheep, cattle, or horses, made bona fide, and for valuable consideration, and registered within thirty days of the date thereof, shall be valid in law, whether the money secured by such mortgage be payable presently or not; notwithstanding, the said mortgaged live stock shall not be delivered over to the possession of the mortgagee, but shall remain in the possession, order, and disposition of the mortgagor, or though the mortgagor should take the benefit of any law in force for the relief of bankrupt or insolvent debtors—provided that no mortgage shall protect such cattle, &c., from the operation of any such insolvent law, which shall not have been executed at least sixty days before the date of the order for sequestration, or unless the consideration thereof shall be an advance or loan made at the time of the execution of such mortgage. The 5th clause enacts, that separate and distinct registry from year to year shall be kept of agreements for purchases or advances on wool, and of mortgages of live stock, and the registrar shall be entitled to demand a fee of 2s. 6d. for every such registry, and 1s. for each affidavit sworn before him, or made on verification thereof; and all persons shall have access to search such registry on payment of a fee of 1s. The 6th clause enacts, that at the end of twelve calendar months the Registrar may remove from his office all records of preferable liens on wool made on wool of that year, and may cancel and destroy the same, or may at any time enter satisfaction on the same. The 7th clause enacts that any grantor of any preferable lien on wool, or of any mortgage on sheep or cattle, &c., who shall sell or deliver any wool under such lien, or shall sell or boil down any sheep on which such wool shall be growing, with a view to defraud the licence of such wool; or shall sell or dispose of in any way any sheep, cattle, or horses he may have mortgaged, with a view to prejudice the mortgagee, shall be held and deemed guilty of an indictable fraud and misdemeanour, and subjected to fine or imprisonment, or both—such imprisonment not to exceed three years, with or without hard labour. The 8th clause enacts that the Act shall not affect the rights of the Crown as to the waste lands. The 9th clause limits the operation of the Act to the 31st December, 1850.

No. 5.—Metallic Ores Bill.—A Bill to render permanent the Act 9th Victoria, No. 23, being "an Act to exempt from duty for a limited time Metallic Ores imported into New South Wales."

No. 6.—Section 70 of the Sydney and Melbourne Corporation Acts Suspension Bill.—An Act to suspend for one year so much of the Sydney and Melbourne Corporation Acts as relates to the estimating and levying a rate for the police of the said city and town respectively.

No. 7.—Spirit Duties Bill.—The first clause of this Bill provides that from and after the 1st day of January, 1848, that on all spirits made or distilled in the colony or its dependencies a duty shall be levied of 3s. 6d. per gallon. On all rum and whiskey imported into the colony a duty of 8s. 6d. On all other imported spirits a duty of 6s. per gallon; providing always, that until further provision be made no duty shall be charged on any spirit made from grapes grown within the colony, by any person duly licensed to keep a still for such a purpose, provided that such spirit shall not be sold or disposed of otherwise than as part of or mixed with the wine made from such grapes. The 2nd clause provides that the said rates and duties shall be charged according to the gallon of imperial standard measure; and at the strength of proof as indicated by the instrument known as Sykes's hydrometer, and so in proportion respectively for any greater or less quantity or strength. The 3rd clause provides that all spirits, liqueurs, cordials, or strong waters, and all wine or other liquor whatsoever containing a greater proportion than twenty-five per cent. of alcohol of the specific gravity of 825 at the temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit shall pay a duty of 6s. per gallon. Clause 4 provides that no spirits shall be deemed rum or whiskey, and which as such would be entitled to the less duty, except on proof that the rum be distilled wholly from the produce of the sugar-cane, and the whiskey wholly from grain; and in failure of such proof, such spirits shall be charged with a duty of 6s., provided always, that all spirits in the bonded warehouses, at the time the Act comes into effect shall be deemed to be of the description under which they have been entered at the Custom House, and be chargeable with duty accordingly. Clause 5 provides that the Act shall be deemed to apply to all spirits or other liquors entered for home consumption, upon which previously to its coming into effect the duty shall not have been paid.

No. 8.—An Act for giving further time to prepare and revise certain lists of persons entitled to vote at the election of members of the Legislative Council. The 1st clause enacts that in every electoral district, or part of a district, in which a list of persons entitled to vote at the election of a member or members of Council for such district has not been made out, published and revised in due course, and in due time within the present year, the same shall be made, signed, and delivered by the collector, as by Act required, before the 10th October, and such lists shall be kept printed, and delivered, and publication thereof made in every day of the week, ending on the 20th of October. The 2nd clause enacts that claims to have names inserted, or objections to names on the list, may be heard on and before the 1st of November. The 3rd clause enacts that Courts of Petty Sessions be held for the revision of the lists. The 4th clause enacts that the revised electoral list shall be delivered to the returning officer, and an alphabetical list made out.

No. 9.—Masters' and Servants' Act.—An Act to amend an Act, intituled, "An Act to amend and consolidate the Laws between Masters and Servants in New South Wales." The 1st clause enacts that it shall be lawful for any two or more Justices of the Peace to hear and determine, in a summary manner, all informations for penalties, and all complaints, differences, and disputes, of whatsoever nature or description, which shall happen or arise under this Act, whether the same be between the servant and his master or employer, or the overseer or agent of such master or employer, and the order or award of the Justices to be final, except where either party appeals to the Quarter Sessions, as provided by the Act. The 2nd clause enacts that no suit, or prosecution, or proceeding whatsoever, shall be commenced against any Justice of the Peace, or any other person, for any matter or thing done by him, for the want of power and authority to hear and determine in a summary way any complaints or informations under the 9th Vict., No. 27, known as the Masters' and Servants' Act. The 3rd clause enacts that agreements made out of the colony, in the United Kingdom, British Colonies, India or in foreign countries, shall subject the parties to the same jurisdiction, and liable to the same penalties as made in the colony: provided that no such contract shall be binding on any person to serve for a longer period than five years. The fourth clause enacts that any servant or other person forging a certificate of discharge from any service, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and on being summarily convicted thereof before any two or more justices of the peace, may be sent to prison with or without hard labour for any period not exceeding three calendar months. The fifth clause enacts that justices may examine the parties on oath, or otherwise at discretion. Clause 6 enacts that at the discretion of the justices the evidence of the wife may be received for the husband. Clause 7 enacts that any person wilfully or knowingly hiring or employing any servant already employed, or retained by any other person, shall for every such offence on summary conviction thereof, be liable to a fine not exceeding £20. The 8th clause enacts, that when the nearest gaol is distant more than thirty miles, the nearest public lock-up or watchhouse may be used as a gaol under this Act—provided that the term of such confinement shall not exceed one week. Clause 9 enacts, that in every case in which a summary jurisdiction is vested in any Justices under this Act, the same shall be exercised only by such Justices in some Court of Petty Sessions duly appointed and publicly notified in the New South Wales Government Gazette. The 10th clause enacts, that Justices may issue distress warrants to enforce the payment of penalties under this Act, if not paid within twenty-one days after conviction. Clause 11 enacts, that no conviction, order, or award, shall be made or had under this Act or the 9th Vict. 7, unless complaint be made within six months from the time when the offence, breach of agreement, or cause of complaint arose. Clause 12 enacts, that no action at law shall lie against any Justice or Justices of the Peace, for any matter or thing which may be done, or commanded to be done by him or them in pursuance of this Act, unless there be direct proof of corruption or malice, and unless such action shall be commenced within three months after the cause of action shall have arisen. Clause 13 enacts that a summons or warrant without a formal information in writing shall be valid, provided that the general nature of the charge is succinctly stated in such summons or warrant, and the original complaint shall be made upon oath. Clause 14 enacts that females shall not be imprisoned under this Act. Clause 15 enacts that nothing in this Act or in the Act of the 9th Victoria shall be deemed to apply to any native of any savage or uncivilised tribe inhabiting any island, or country in the Pacific Ocean or elsewhere. Clause 16 enacts that an appeal against the conviction, order, or award of the Justices, may be made to Courts of Quarter Sessions. The 17th clause limits the duration of this Act and of the Act 9th Victoria No. 7, to the 31st December, 1850.

No. 10.—An Act for the regulation of Benefit Building Societies.—The 1st clause enacts, that it shall be lawful for any number of persons in New South Wales to form themselves into societies for the purpose of raising by the monthly method subscriptions of the members, in shares not exceeding £200 each, such subscriptions not to exceed 30s. per month per share—a fund for the purpose of enabling each member thereof to receive out of the funds of such Society the amount of his share or shares therein to erect or purchase one or more dwelling houses or other real or leasehold estate to be secured by way of mortgage to such Society, with the interest thereon, and all fines or other payments incurred in respect thereof, and that the members of such societies shall have power and authority to make rules for their own government and guidance, under the provisions of this Act. Clause 2 enacts, that it shall be lawful for any such society to receive from any member of such society any sum of money by way of bonus on any share, for the privilege of receiving the same in advance prior to the same being realised, and also any interest for the share or shares so received. Clause 3 enacts, that the form of conveyance, &c., may be set forth in a schedule to the rules of the Society. Clause 4 enacts, that the provisions of the 7th Victoria No. 10, being an Act to regulate Friendly Societies in the colony of New South Wales, shall extend to the societies formed under this Act, as far as they are applicable. Clause 5 enacts, that it shall be lawful for the trustees of such societies to endorse upon any mortgage, or further charge, given by any member of such society to the trustees thereof, for moneys advanced by such society, a receipt for all money intended to be secured by such mortgage, which shall be sufficient to vacate the same, and vest the estate of and in the property comprised in such security in the person or persons for the time being entitled to the equity of redemption, without it being necessary for the parties to give any re-conveyance of the property so mortgaged.

REGULATIONS OF HACKNEY CARRIAGES.

The following is a copy of the By-law which is to come under the consideration of the City Council this afternoon:—

A By-law for licensing and regulating Hackney Carriages, and the Owners and Drivers thereof, plying for hire within the City of Sydney, and within the distance of eight miles from the corporate limits of the said City.

Whereas, by an Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of the colony of New South Wales, passed in the eleventh year of the reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to enable the Council of the City of Sydney to make by-laws for the licensing and regulating hackney Carriages within the City of Sydney and its vicinity, and the conduct of the owners and drivers thereof;" after reciting that by an Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of New South Wales, passed in the sixth year of the reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to declare the Town of Sydney to be a City, and to incorporate the Inhabitants thereof," it is amongst other things enacted, that it should be lawful for the Council of the said City to make, publish, alter, modify, amend, or repeal, such by-laws and regulations as to them should seem meet for the good rule and government of the said City, for the regulation and government of carters, porters, drivers, and for other purposes, and to impose penalties for breaches of the by-laws so to be made under the restrictions and provisions contained in the said Act; and that doubts were entertained whether the Council of the said City were empowered by the said Act to make by-laws for licensing and regulating hackney carriages plying for hire within the City and its vicinity, and the conduct of the owners and drivers thereof, and that it was expedient that such doubts should be removed, it was therefore enacted by His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council thereof, that from and after the passing of the now reciting Act, it should be lawful for the Council of the said City from time to time to make and publish such by-laws as to them should seem meet for licensing and regulating hackney carriages, and the owners and drivers thereof, plying for hire within the said City, and within the distance of eight miles from the corporate limits of the said City, the amount payable for such license, and the manner of paying for the same; and for regulating the conduct of the owners and drivers of such hackney carriages. And whereas it is expedient and necessary that some provision should be made for licensing and regulating hackney carriages, and the owners and drivers thereof, plying for hire within the said City, and within the distance of eight miles from the corporate limits thereof: Be it therefore ordered and ordained by the Council of the said City in Council assembled—

I. That no such carriage shall ply for hire within the said city without being duly licensed by the said Council.

II. That any such license may, for the misconduct of the proprietor or driver of such carriage, be suspended and revoked by the said Council when and as they shall deem right.

III. That before any such license shall be granted, a requisition for, the same shall be made and signed by the proprietor or one of the proprietors of the carriage in respect of which such license shall be applied for; and in every such requisition there shall be truly specified and set forth the Christian or first name and surname and place of abode of the person applying for such license, and of every person who shall be a proprietor, or part proprietor of such carriage, or who shall be concerned either solely or in partnership with any other person in the keeping, using, employing, or letting to hire such carriage; and in case any person on applying for such license shall neglect or omit to specify truly in such requisition as aforesaid the name of any person who shall be a proprietor of such carriage, or who shall be concerned as aforesaid in keeping, using, employing, or letting to hire, of every such carriage, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

IV. That there shall be specified in every such license the true Christian, or first name, and surname, and place of abode of every person who shall be a proprietor or part proprietor of the carriage in respect of which such license shall be granted, or who shall be concerned either solely or in partnership with any other person in the keeping, using, employing, or letting to hire of such carriage; and the number of the license shall be painted or marked on the plates to be affixed on such carriage.

V. That for every such license there shall be paid to the Town Clerk the sum of three pounds annually for the benefit of the City Fund.

VI. That so often as any person named as the proprietor or one of the proprietors in any license to keep, use, and employ, and let to hire, any such carriage, shall change his place of abode, he shall within seven days next after such change give notice thereof in writing signed by him to the Town Clerk, specifying in such notice his new place of abode; and such proprietor shall at the same time produce such license at the office of the Town Clerk, who shall endorse thereon and sign a memorandum specifying the particulars of such change; and if any person named as the proprietor or one of the proprietors of any such carriage in any such license shall change his place of abode, and shall neglect or omit to give notice of such change, or to produce such license, in order that such memorandum as aforesaid may be endorsed thereon, within the time and in manner herein limited and directed, he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding two pounds.

VII. That if the proprietor of any such carriage shall permit the same to be used as a carriage plying for hire within the said city, without having a valid license for such carriage as aforesaid; or if any person should be found driving, standing, or plying for hire, with any carriage for which there shall not then be in existence such valid license as aforesaid, or shall lend or part with his license, every person so offending shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

VIII. That no person shall act as driver of any such carriage unless previously licensed by the said Council; and every such license shall within seven days after the granting thereof be registered in the Town Clerk's office, a certificate of which registry shall be given to every such person upon the payment of the sum of five shillings annually for the benefit of the city fund; and every person neglecting to register his license within such time shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding two pounds.

IX. That the licenses of drivers shall be numbered consecutively, in the order in which the same shall be tendered to be registered, and each driver at the time of registering his license, shall have delivered to him a duplicate of such license, signed by the Town Clerk; and if any such driver shall, for ten days, neglect to deliver his license and the duplicate to the Town Clerk, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, any sum not exceeding twenty shillings.

X. That if any person shall act as such driver without having obtained such license, or shall lend or part with his license, or if the proprietor of any such carriage shall employ any person as the driver thereof, who shall not have obtained such license, every such person and every such proprietor shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XI. That if the proprietor of any such carriage, shall permit or employ any licensed person to act as driver thereof, then, and in every such case, such proprietor shall require to be delivered to him, and shall retain in his possession, the license of such driver during such time as such driver shall remain in his employ; and in all cases of complaint where the proprietor of such carriage shall be summoned to attend before a justice, or to produce the driver, the proprietor so summoned shall also produce the license of such driver if he shall then be in his employ; and if any driver complained of shall be adjudged guilty of the offence alleged against him, it shall be lawful for such justice to make an indorsement upon the license of such driver, stating the nature of the offence and the amount of penalty inflicted, and if any proprietor shall neglect to require to be delivered to him, and to retain in his possession, the license of any driver, during such period as such driver shall remain in his employ, or shall refuse or neglect to produce such license as aforesaid, such proprietor shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XII. That when and so often as any driver shall leave the service of the proprietor by whom he shall have been employed, and shall not have been guilty of any misconduct, such proprietor shall forthwith return to such driver the license belonging to him; and if such proprietor shall not return such license, he shall, unless such driver shall have been convicted of some offence sufficient in the opinion of any justice to warrant the withholding of it, forfeit and pay for every such offence, any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XIII. That it shall be lawful for any Justice before whom any driver shall be convicted of any offence under this Act, if such Justice in his discretion shall think proper, to suspend for any period not exceeding two months the license granted to such driver; and it shall also be lawful for any Justice, upon proof that any driver has been convicted of felony during the continuance of such license, or upon conviction before him for a second offence under this Act, to revoke the license granted to such driver; and wherever the license of any driver shall be suspended or revoked as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for any Justice to require any proprietor to deliver up forthwith to such Justice the license of such driver, if the same shall be in his possession, or to require such driver to deliver up forthwith to such Justice his license; and if any proprietor or driver shall, upon being so required, refuse or neglect to deliver up such license, he shall forfeit any sum not exceeding two pounds; and every Justice to whom any license shall be delivered up shall forthwith transmit the same to the Town Clerk, who shall, at the expiration of the period for which any such license shall have been suspended, re-deliver such license to the person to whom it shall have been granted.

XIV. That in case any driver shall at any time, whilst he is driving, loading, or unloading, or attending any such carriage within the said city, wilfully or negligently do or cause to be done any hurt, spoil, or damage, to the person of any one, his or her goods or chattels, or shall be guilty of any breach of the peace or misbehaviour in his employment, he shall in every such case forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XV. That every person who, while having the care or conduct of any such carriage, shall not keep the same on the left or near side of the road, except in case of actual necessity, or some sufficient reason for deviation, or shall wilfully prevent any person or carriage from passing him, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XVI. That any driver who shall suffer or permit any such carriage, with or without horses, to stand in any part of the said city longer than may be necessary for loading or unloading, or for taking up or setting down passengers, except while standing for hire in any place appointed for that purpose, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding one pound.

XVII. That every driver of any such carriage who, while engaged in taking up or setting down any passenger or other person, shall not during such taking up or setting down place such carriage as near as conveniently may be to that side of the street at which the taking up or setting down is performed, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding one pound.

XVIII. That every driver of any such carriage who shall in any such part of the said city, while having the care of any such carriage, use any obscene or blasphemous language, or any threatening, abusive, or insulting words, with intent to provoke a breach of the peace, or whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned, shall for every such offence forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XIX. That the owner or owners of every such carriage shall, before the same shall ply for hire, have his, her, or their names or name painted in a straight line on the outside of each door thereof, immediately under the window, or in some other conspicuous place if there be neither door nor window, in letters not less than one inch in height, and of moderate breadth, in black or white, which shall the most differ from the colour of the carriage, and shall continue such name or names legible and undefaced during all the time such carriage shall ply or be used for hire; and every owner making default in any of the matters aforesaid, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XX. That tin plates, with the number of the license of the carriage painted thereon in figures not less than two inches in height, and of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black, shall be affixed to the outside of every such carriage, in a conspicuous place on each side of the same, so as not to conceal the owner's name; provided that in lieu of affixing plates, the number aforesaid may be painted on any such carriage in each conspicuous place as aforesaid, such number being painted in figures not less than two inches in height, and of a proportionate breadth, in white upon a black ground, and no part of the name of the owner being concealed thereby, and such numbers being legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage shall ply or be used for hire; and any person making default in the matters aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XXI. That the number of the license of the carriage painted on a card six inches by three, in clear legible figures, shall be affixed at the top of the carriage inside, and there shall also be painted on such card under the number, the following words: "For every carriage for any distance within and not exceeding one mile one shilling, and for any distance exceeding one mile after the rate of sixpence for every half mile, and for every fractional part of half a mile over and above any number of half miles completed; and for every car two-thirds only of the rates and fares above mentioned. Driver to produce rates and fares on demand; no extra charge for luggage not exceeding 20 lbs. weight." And such number and words shall be affixed, and legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage shall ply or be used for hire; and any owner or driver making default in any of the matters aforesaid shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds.

XXII. That the owner or owners of such carriage shall have the same and the horses ready to take a fare at the stations hereafter mentioned, appropriated as public stands, or within their respective yards, coach-houses, or stables, which are to be considered as stands from five o'clock in the morning until ten at night, and as soon as practicable after being called up between twelve o'clock at night and seven in the morning; and every owner who shall make default in compliance with this by-law shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XXIII. That the owner or owners of every such carriage shall at all times have the same in good order, with the harness perfect and in good condition, and the glasses and frames of the same whole, and the leathers attached to the frames of sufficient length, and the inside clean and in good repair and order, and the whole ready and sufficient for duty, with driver and horses or horse competent to perform any fare in due time that may be reasonably required, and any owner or owners making default in any respect in compliance herewith shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XXIV. That the owner or owners of every such carriage shall provide a sufficient check-string for the same, and the driver when driving shall have, if required, the check-string fastened to his hand or arm; and every owner or owners or driver making default in compliance with this by-law, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding three pounds.

XXV. That the said owners and drivers shall and may receive and demand the several fares hereunder written, viz.:—For every carriage for any distance within, and not exceeding one mile, one shilling; and for any distance exceeding one mile after the rate of sixpence for every half mile, and for every fractional part of half a mile, over and above any number of half miles completed; and for every car two-thirds only of the rates and fares above mentioned. Driver to produce rates and fares on demand.

XXVI. Provided that for every fare, or so much of every fare as may be performed by any such carriage after ten o'clock at night, and before five o'clock in the morning, an addition to the ordinary fare of one-half the fare shall be allowed and paid on account of such extraordinary time.

XXVII. That such rates are inclusive of all charges for luggage, not exceeding 20lbs. weight.

XXVIII. That the distance shall be computed from the stand or place whence the carriage may happen to be engaged or hired, but in case the carriage shall be taken from any place of public amusement, or public building, the distance shall be computed from such place of amusement or public building; and not from the stand where the carriage may usually ply, whether such carriage may or may not have been engaged to take up at such place of public amusement.

XXIX. That if the driver of any such carriage be detained in the course of his fare above fifteen minutes at any place or places, except when detained by the hirer for the purpose of returning, as hereinafter provided, he shall receive for every fifteen minutes' detention, if it be a car, four-pence, if a carriage, sixpence.

XXX. That in any of the following cases it shall be at the option of the hirer to detain the carriage and return in the same on payment of half-fare, without additional charge for detention, viz.:—Where the hire of a carriage shall amount to three shillings or upwards; or of a car to two shillings or upwards, and the detention shall not exceed one hour; where the hire of a carriage shall amount to two shillings or upwards, or of a car to one shilling and sixpence or upwards, and the detention shall not exceed half an hour; where the hire of a carriage shall amount to one shilling and sixpence or upwards, or of a car to one shilling or upwards, and the detention shall not exceed one quarter of an hour.

XXXI. And it is hereby declared, that so far as concerns fares and passengers in these by-laws, a carriage having four wheels and two horses shall be deemed a carriage, and a carriage having either two horses and two wheels or one horse and two wheels, or one horse and four wheels, shall be deemed a car.

XXXII. That the hire of every such carriage shall be by the day twenty shillings, and by the hour two shillings and sixpence for the first hour, and two shillings for every subsequent hour; and for a car two-thirds only of the above fares; the day to be computed at any twelve consecutive hours between five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night.

XXXIII. That the number of passengers which may be required to be conveyed in such carriage shall be five, and in such car three, and one of such passengers shall be conveyed on the box if the person hiring shall require the same: provided that the owner or driver of any such carriage who shall carry more passengers than is provided for as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XXXIV. That no child or children in the lap shall be accounted as passenger or passengers, and that no child not in the lap, but under seven years of age, shall be so counted, unless there shall be more than one such child; and if there shall be more than one not in the lap, but under seven years of age, then two of such children shall be accounted equal to one adult person, and considered as one passenger.

XXXV. That if any owner or driver of any such carriage shall refuse or delay to take a fare if not before engaged; or if any such owner or driver having agreed to take any fare at any time, or from any place, shall delay, neglect, or refuse so to do, every person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

XXXVI. That any person calling or sending for any such carriage and not further employing the same, shall pay as follows:—a carriage, one shilling; a car, eightpence; or the fare from the stand, or from the place where the carriage or car may be engaged; and if the person calling the carriage shall detain the same, he shall further pay for any time that the carriage may be detained, not exceeding a quarter of an hour, if a carriage sixpence, and if a car four-pence; and for any further time not exceeding a second quarter of an hour, if a carriage sixpence, and if a car four-pence; and for any further time in the same proportion.

XXXVII. That if the owner or driver of any such carriage shall demand, receive, or take for a fare a greater sum than the amount authorised to be demanded, received, or taken, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

XXXVIII. That in addition to the respective coach-houses or stable-yards of the owners of such carriages, the following places be and they are hereby appointed

The Bench was occupied by Captain Browne, Water Police Magistrate, and [illegible] Windeyer. The prosecution was conducted [illegible] Mr. Nichols, Mr. Brenan appearing for the [illegible]. The complainant, Thomas Williamson, commander of the brig Governor, deposed [illegible] about the 20th August last, on the [illegible] near the Island of Timor, John Greneld, the cook, and a seaman on board [illegible], assaulted him while standing near [illegible], struck him a severe blow with his [illegible] fist on the side of his head, following [illegible] with another which did not take [illegible], in consequence of the first having [illegible] the complainant beyond the reach of [illegible] defendant's fist. Cross-examined by Mr. Brenan: This took place about half-past two [illegible] in the afternoon; he (complainant) had [illegible] up from the cabin in consequence [illegible] defendant having sent him down [illegible] which he did not like; [illegible] was standing at the galley door [illegible] complainant went up; he (complainant) [illegible] him how he came to make tea for him [illegible] salt water, when defendant said that one [illegible] the boys, not him, made the tea, and a good [illegible] before he struck the blow; witness [illegible] not strike, nor threaten to strike, before he [illegible] a blow from the defendant; he might [illegible] have shook his hand at the defendant; Greneld said that if he (complainant) struck him, he (Greneld) would [illegible] him in return; that complainant was no[illegible], and used a number of opprobrious [illegible]; complainant put out his hand to lay [illegible] defendant for the purpose of taking [illegible], when defendant struck him a severe [illegible] his right hand on the side of the [illegible] which knocked him against the rail, following the blow with his left hand, which [illegible]; the crew of the brig came to [illegible] complainant's aid, when Greneld was secured; [illegible] then taken aft, and—(Mr. Nichols submitted to the Bench that Mr. Brenan having [illegible] witness to the assault, had no right [illegible] any further—that the acts of either party [illegible] to the assault had nothing to do [illegible] the present proceeding. Mr. Brenan said [illegible] as he was instructed, the subsequent acts of the complainant towards his client [illegible] show a good ground for at least a mitigation of punishment, if he did not prove that [illegible] complainant himself committed the assault [illegible] of the defendant. The cross-examination then resumed.) The defendant was [illegible] in irons—both hand and leg irons, and [illegible] secured to a bolt in the deck, [illegible] a cabin was cleared in which [illegible] him, about two or three hours; he [illegible] kept in that confinement, and fed on [illegible] and water, until the arrival of the vessel [illegible], when a warrant was procured and [illegible] handed over to the police; the leg-[illegible] were taken off him in two or three days, [illegible] discovering that he had attempted to [illegible] out of the cabin they were again put on. Re-examined by Mr. Nichols: The defendant [illegible] to break out by knocking out a panel [illegible] cabin door; every night and morning he [illegible] asked if he wished to get out on deck, [illegible] sometimes he did, and at others declined; a quantity of sails, which were in the [illegible], were destroyed in consequence of his [illegible] to go out, and they were thrown overboard; he never offered to make an apology [illegible] his conduct, but on more than one occasion [illegible] him (complainant) by many opprobrious [illegible]. The Bench thought that at least sufficient punishment had been inflicted by the [illegible] for the assault, if not more than, was [illegible] for, and suggested the dismissal of the [illegible]. Mr. Nichols said he thought there had [illegible] sufficient punishment inflicted, and would [illegible] no objection to close the case on the infliction of the smallest fine, or a dismissal, if the [illegible] would record the ground of their dismissing it. Mr. Brenan preferred that the [illegible] should be gone on with rather than such [illegible] record be made. Mr. Nichols then called [illegible] Eedy, who deposed that he was the first [illegible] of the brig Governor, and kept the log [illegible]produced) in which he entered the substance [illegible] whatever occurred on board the vessel; under the date of Sunday, the 22nd of August, [illegible] was the following entry:—(Mr. Brenan [illegible] to the witness reading a statement of what took place; it was [illegible] in evidence; but the Bench [illegible] the objection, and the witness proceeded to read.) "At about two P.M., during [illegible], the captain found the tea which was [illegible] down for his dinner to be made of dirty [illegible]; he immediately ordered it up to the [illegible] again, and went up to enquire what the [illegible] meant by making the tea of such water, [illegible] sending it down to the cabin; the cook [illegible] it was not salt water, and became very insolent, and threatened that if the captain [illegible] his fist in his face that he, the cook, [illegible] strike him; the captain then replied [illegible] if he gave him any more insolence he [illegible] punish him; the cook replied, 'What [illegible] you do—what would you do? by —— if [illegible] strike me I will strike you,' and set the [illegible] at defiance; the captain said he would [illegible] soon show him what he would do; he [illegible] told the captain he was no gentleman; the [illegible] then went to take hold of him to take [illegible] aft; he then struck the captain with all [illegible] force with his right hand, knocking him up [illegible] the lee bulwarks, and following it up [illegible] a second blow with the left hand, closed [illegible] him, and then slipped down upon the [illegible], when the second mate and myself, who [illegible] looking on from the quarter-deck, went to [illegible] captain's assistance, and brought the cook [illegible]. The captain then put him in irons, and [illegible] had him aft upon the quarter-deck till a place [illegible] be cleared for him." All entries were [illegible] in the log on the day the transaction [illegible] took place. The further hearing of the [illegible] was here postponed until the next day. [illegible] Tuesday the proceedings commenced [illegible] the cross-examination of Mr. Eedy by [illegible] Brenan: both the captain and the cook [illegible] taken aft after the blow, the captain towards [illegible] bulwarks and the cook on the deck; after [illegible], the defendant was taken aft by the [illegible], himself, and the second officer, and [illegible] bolted to a bolt in the deck, while the cabin [illegible] prepared, irons being on his hands and [illegible]; the leg irons were on for some days; he [illegible] allowed two biscuits and a-half every [illegible]-four hours. This closed the case for [illegible] prosecution, when Mr. Brenan addressed [illegible] Bench in defence. He said, that according to the evidence brought against his client [illegible] evident that it was the captain and not [illegible] cook who committed the assault, for it was [illegible] in any third because possibly the defendant struck the first blow he therefore committed the assault; he was confident that the [illegible] would have arrived at the conclusion [illegible] the captain himself who assaulted [illegible] when he bolted from the cabin table [illegible] because he disliked the tea, [illegible] his fist as defendant declared he [illegible]; the defendant merely asked, [illegible] he would do, the captain thrust out [illegible], as he said to take hold of him, but [illegible] might have been to strike him, when, [illegible] before, the defendant gave the captain [illegible] as under the circumstances he considered he was justified in doing; for although [illegible] having made the tea himself, the [illegible] did not condescend to inquire into the [illegible] of that denial. Captain Williamson had [illegible] to raise his hand to the man unless he [illegible] something to justify a blow; and [illegible] that even the tea had been made [illegible] water, of which there was no proof, it [illegible] therefore be said that the cook deserved to be knocked down and dragged aft. [illegible] that the raising or shaking of the [illegible] by the captain himself was in [illegible] and a sufficient assault to [illegible] the blow which it had been alleged was [illegible] by his client. Mr. Brenan called John [illegible], who deposed that he was a seaman [illegible] to the brig Governor, and recollected [illegible] between Captain Williamson and the [illegible]; the captain went up to [illegible] defendant, who was standing at the galley [illegible], asked him how he came to give him [illegible] when the cook replied that [illegible] about it, as one of the boys [illegible] [illegible] would make some [illegible] his fist in defendant's face, who [illegible] the captain then [illegible] the cook by the collar, the ship [illegible] on the deck; he did [illegible] the captain was in a [illegible] Re-examined by Mr. Nichols: [illegible] the defendant say to the captain, "If you strike me, I will strike you;" will not swear he did not say so, nor yet that he did not strike the captain; heard him say "What will you do—what will you do?" Re-examined by Mr. Brenan. The cook could not have struck the captain before he was seized by the collar, or he (witness) must have seen it, as they were standing edgeways to him. Mr. Nichols then addressed the Bench on the case. He submitted that the facts of the case as exhibited in the evidence, perfectly justified the complainant in the course he had adopted, and unless their worships were of opinion that the captain and his officer had deliberately perjured themselves, they could not avoid the conclusion that the defendant had been guilty of an assault. He was himself of opinion, that sufficient punishment had been inflicted, and did not ask for any further infliction; if more than sufficient punishment, under all the circumstances of the case, had been endured by the defendant, he had his remedy in another Court. With reference to the variation in the evidence of Eedy and Porter, he submitted that of a perfectly disinterested witness, and that witness not speaking from memory only, but aided by memoranda made at the time, was more to be depended on than that of the man who spoke from recollection merely of occurrences some three or four months after they transpired. He thought the Bench could have no hesitation in pronouncing that an assault had been committed, but that sufficient punishment had already been inflicted. With such a record he (Mr. Nichols) would be perfectly satisfied. After some consideration, the Bench said, they did not think that an accidental use of salt water by the defendant for the tea warranted the captain in proceeding as he had done—an act of mutiny, or an attempted assassination, could not have called forth more extreme measures than had been used in this case. There was so much of temper mixed up in the affair, and, on the whole, so much of doubt as to the commencement of the assault, that they should give the defendant the benefit thereof, and dismiss the case.

TENEMENTS ACT.—The long pending case, under the Recovery of Tenements Act, of Gosling and Brown v. Coughlan, was yesterday concluded, and the Bench (Mr. Windeyer and Captain Innes) have fixed Saturday next for giving their decision.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND HOPS.—After several attempts the Commissariat Department got rid of the Van Diemen's Land hops yesterday, Mr. S. Lyons having effected their sale by auction at 3½d. and 4½d. per pound, the purchaser paying the ad valorem duty; but we believe they will be exported.

COLONIAL CLOTH.—Large shipments of machinery, adapted for finishing the finer descriptions of cloths, have arrived for the Stockton Factory, by the Agincourt and Baboo.

FURIOUS DRIVING.—We often receive communications from persons complaining of parties driving furiously through the streets. If instead of writing to a newspaper the persons would take the trouble to lay an information at the Police Office they would do something towards decreasing a nuisance which is of a serious nature. An effectual check to the practice we fear will not take place until some dashing gentleman who thinks he shows his skill by driving a gig through the streets at the rate of ten miles an hour, finds himself transported for manslaughter.

IMPORTANT SALE OF EARTHENWARE.—We are requested by Mr. Mort to call the attention of the Trade Storekeepers, and Dealers, to his Sale of twenty-five Crates of assorted Earthenware, to take place at his Rooms, this day, at Eleven o'clock, without the slightest reserve.—Communicated.

LAND IN LOWER GEORGE-STREET, NEW GEORGE-STREET, WENTWORTH-STREET, MILLER'S POINT, AND BOTANY-STREET, SURRY HILLS.—We have been requested by Mr. Lyons to remind parties having money to invest in the purchase of property, situate in the city or its environs, that he sells, this day, at the Mart, at eleven o'clock, several allotments in the above valuable localities, as fully described in our advertising columns.—Communicated.

CITY MART SALES.—We are requested to call the attention of intending purchasers to the fact that the sales at Mr. G. A. Lloyd's rooms, this day, will be without reserve, and that as the goods are of the best descriptions, they are well worthy of the attention of the trade in general.—Communicated.

PARRAMATTA.

EXHIBITION OF THE FINE ARTS.

This exhibition opened, as has already been stated, on Thursday last, and has been since most numerously attended, and from the opinions expressed by the visitors, they have been both surprised and delighted.

The exhibition is held in the large room of the King's School, lent for the occasion by the Master, the Rev. J. Walker, and the manner in which it has been adapted for the purpose it is now employed in confers credit on the parties charged with the performance of the task.

The paintings, (oil and water colour), crayon, pen and ink drawings, and engravings, number about 400; of these something like an eighth are portraits, nine-tenths of which being of parties unknown beyond the immediate circle of their families and friends, there does certainly appear something like vanity in their occupying so much as they do of a circumscribed space. This, however, was perhaps unavoidable, as it was not believed when the appeal was made for the loan of paintings to get up an exhibition for the benefit of the Benevolent Asylum, as the proceeds are to be handed over to this institution, that this call, one having a double effect, the advancement of the arts in New South Wales, and the exercise of charity, would have been so liberally and extensively responded to as it has been, pictures and works of art having been sent to the Committee in some instances from long distances. There are, however, several portraits, which it is gratifying to see, as the originals were in their lives part and parcel of the history of the colony. Among these, portraits of the late Thomas Moore, of Liverpool, the late Rev. Samuel Marsden, the late Mr. Oakes, the late Judge Field, and Sir Thomas Brisbane. And while noticing those of the past days of this land, attention may be called to a portrait of one of the mother-country's great men, Brindley, the father of internal navigation, and which has been lent to the exhibition by his grandson, Brindley Bettington.

The greater portion of the portraits of the living unknown are by Griffith, and are it must be admitted admirable likenesses, but judging from specimens of this artist's talent shown in other works than copies of "the human face divine;" it is to be regretted that his ability is not more honourably employed. Griffith has a sketch of the celebrated Mr. Withers: it is perfect, it (almost) "lives and breathes every inch"—Withers!

In making the observations that have been made respecting the extraordinary number of portraits, it must not be supposed that in this censure one or two family groups, or some copies of female beauty, are included; their loveliness, supposing of course the originals have been honestly transcribed to the canvas, forbids even a harsh line on their presence in the exhibition, and attention may particularly be called to No. 28 in the catalogue, Portrait of a Child, artist unknown. It is a picture that can be again and again gazed upon with delight, from its beauty.

There are some rare works of great masters, viz.:—No. 11. Landscape and Cow, by Adrian Vandervelde. No. 12. A Portrait, by Solomon Kouningh. No. 103. The Philosopher, by Rembrandt. No. 218. Portrait, by Landseer. Nos. 244. A Laboratory. 284 and 285. The Fisherman and the Poulterer, by Teniers. No. 240. A Head, by Vandyke. No. 243. Landscape, by Morland. And No. 241. Cattle, by Cuyp. A careful inspection of the foregoing, and testing them by the known characteristics of each of those several artists, induces the belief that they are all originals.

There are some prize pictures among the collection. No. 26. The Recusants, by J. C. Brown, and 286. Match Vendors on Tramp, by Tako, of Manchester, both distinguished artists; as is also a painting by Runciman, No. 127, from M'Kenzie's Man of Feeling.

The collection is rather rich in landscapes—Nos. 14, 16, and 17, Views in the Isle of Wight—Loch Katrine, and Loch Maree, and one numbered 359, call for note, as do, most especially so, two by Rodius, Nos. 54 and 55, and No. 40, View of Sydney Harbour from Woolloomooloo, a copy, by Griffith, from an original by Martens, also in the exhibition, No. 150. The copy is superior to the original; the sea in the distance, in the former, appears to be, as it far more natural, correct, perspective situation than in the latter. A sepia drawing by Griffith of Unstacking Wheat, No. 9; and an Italian Head, No. 361, by the same artist: Saul and the Witch of Endor raising the Ghost of Samuel, No. 267, artist unknown; likewise deserve attention being called to them.

There are a great many specimens of amateur labours in the exhibition, all of which are creditable productions. Taking the artists in the order in which their names occur in the catalogue, Mr. Wickham has contributed six; they are copies, but such copies as show taste. A copy after Vandyke, and of Landseer's picture (from the Comedy of Errors) to his Dog, are very good. No. 45 and 46, the Temples of Hope and Bacchus at Rome, artist unknown; No. 57, The Benediction; No. 144, Head of Rubens, by a Lady; No. 252, a Chalk Drawing of a Head by Miss Stuart; may all be regarded with pleasure. Mr. Tebbutt has four pretty pictures, one of which (The Lady Raffles sunk after Burning in Sydney Cove) is a very pretty specimen of art. Mr. and Miss Rowling have six works. Mr. Sparkes three landscapes—one a view of Rochester, true to nature. If it be allowable to offer advice to some of the amateurs, we would recommend them to leave off making copies, they have stuff within them which it is opined could do something original.

In the foregoing enumeration fourteen pieces by the Misses Havens ought to have been placed; but if we mistake not, these young ladies' abilities were noticed at the time of the Sydney exhibition; it is unnecessary here to do more than mention their presence.

There are several paintings of still life. No. 119. Bacon and Cauliflower, artist unknown, is a gem.

Proceeding next to the engravings. A collection lent by Dr. Hill may with confidence be stated to be one that no person out of (and perhaps but few there) England possesses. It includes the whole of the publications of the Scottish Art Union, and other celebrated prints—proofs before letters. In support of the assertion of the merit of the collection it is only necessary to mention, that it numbers Allen's Covenanters; Heroism and Humanity; Sir Walter Scott in his Study; the Slave Market at Constantinople; Duncan's Prince Charles hiding after Culloden, and the Prince's entrance into Edinburgh after the Battle of Preston. The same artist's admirable portraits of the late Dr. Chalmers, Scott; Lauder's Glee Maiden, Italian Goatherds, Ruth, Wilkie's Chelsea Pensioners reading the Gazette after the Battle of Waterloo, John Knox Preaching, and the Penny Wedding. And here, as being in the same collection, are two splendid specimens of art in portraits, by the Doctor's brother, the celebrated landscape painter, D. O. Hill, of the Doctor and his Lady. A collection of the Cartoons, Raffaelle's glory and England's boast, in their possession, also demand attention; a fine print of Vernet's Adieux de Fontainbleau, and a sweet subject admirably engraved, of Benevolence, must not be passed over. Our limits do not allow us to make a catalogue of the prints, but for three however, the Ruined Gamester, the Daughter, and the Wife, a line must be spared. There is also another which it would be unfair not to notice. A collection of the whole of the works of Sir Christopher Wren, by Cockerill; it is an admirable composition, and ought to be in the studio of every architect. Of course among so large a number of engravings and prints as are here, there are some very mediocre ones.

We come now to the works of feminine hands, specimens of embroidery. 346. An embroidered chair, the work of Mrs. F. Oakes, is truly magnificent; the labour employed on it must have been immense, it requires to be seen to be appreciated. The fair worker has placed on it a value of £30, a high price, but inadequate, and the sum realized to be given to the Society. Miss Staff's embroidery of the Interior of St. John's Church, was noticed in this journal some time since. There are upwards of a dozen specimens of embroidery. Two pieces by Mrs. Captain Smith; the Cottage Girl, by Miss Phillips; Sheltered Peasants, by Miss Macmanus; Shakespeare, by Miss Howell; Joseph introducing Jacob to Pharaoh, by Miss M.; and the Village Maid, by Miss E. Thorne; and No. 84, by Miss Bridges, all show that the young ladies of Parramatta are nulli secundus in this description of feminine art. There is one specimen, however, that had better have been out of the exhibition, and it would have been as well if ~~the catalogue had not been made a medium of~~ advertising a ladies' seminary as being the scene of the workmanship of some of the pieces: it borders too much on "Spakism."

In the miscellaneous collection No. 20, described as St. Peter's at Rome, is a singular work. The ground is apparently vellum, and the architecture is brought out by strips of black and gold paper pasted on it—the effect is very pretty. There is a large gathering of the birds and reptiles of New South Wales, all well set up; and one most laughable case, a monkey as a cobbler; the stall complete in boots and shoes, and the usual "kit." Engravings of the shield given to the hero of a hundred fights. Chinese paintings and swords: head and other dresses and warlike implements of the Feegeeans and other Islanders; rice paintings; a model of a wigwam; a young sea horse caught outside Sydney Heads; a colonial cocoanut found on Liverpool Plains; the Burmese god Buddha; and last, though not least, some waxwork flowers, a small case of which by Miss Driver are perfection, complete the collection.

The exhibition it will therefore be seen presents attractions for both young and old, and for all tastes, and in concluding our report, we cannot, after congratulating the promoters of the exhibition on the admirable manner in which they have got it up, do better than advise a visit.

MISCELLANEOUS EXTRACTS.

THE FINAL AND DECISIVE CHARGE.

(From Gleig's Story of the Battle of Waterloo.)

It was now eight o'clock in the evening, or perhaps a little later. The physical strength of the combatants on both sides had become well nigh exhausted, and on the part of the English there was a feverish desire to close with the enemy, and bring matters to an issue. Up to the present moment, however, the Duke had firmly restrained them. For all purposes of defensive warfare they were excellent troops; the same blood was in their veins which had stirred their more veteran comrades of the Peninsula; but, as has elsewhere been explained, four-fifths of the English regiments were raw levies—second battalions, to manœuvre with which, in the presence of a skilful enemy, might have been dangerous. Steadily, therefore, and with wise caution, the Duke held them in hand, giving positive orders to each of his Generals that they should not follow up any temporary success, so as to endanger the consistency of their lines, but return after every charge to the crest of the hill, and be content with holding that. Now, however, the moment was come for acting on a different principle. Not by Adam and Maitland alone, but by the brigades of Ompteda, Pack, Kempt, and Lambert, the enemy had been overthrown with prodigious slaughter, and all equally panted to be let loose. Moreover, from minute to minute, the sound of firing in the direction of Planchenoit became more audible. It was clear, therefore, that even young troops might be slipped in pursuit without much hazard to their own safety, and the Duke let his people go. The lines of infantry were simultaneously formed, the cavalry mounted and rode on, and then a cheer began on the right, which flew like electricity throughout the entire position. Well was it understood, especially by those who, on a different soil and under a warmer sun, had often listened to similar music. The whole line advanced, and scenes commenced of fiery attack and resolute defence—of charging horsemen and infantry stern, such as there is no power, either in pen nor pencil, adequately to describe.

It might savour of invidiousness were I, in dealing with this part of my subject, to specify particular Brigades or Regiments, as if they more than others had distinguished themselves. The case was not so. Every man that day did his duty—making allowance, of course, for the proportion of weak hearts which move in the ranks of every army, and seize the first favourable opportunity that presents itself of providing for their own safety. And probably it will not be received as a stain upon the character of British troops, if I venture to hazard a conjecture, that in the army of Waterloo these were as numerous as in any which the Duke of Wellington ever commanded. Accident, however, and their local situation in the battle, necessarily bring some corps more conspicuously into view than others, and at this stage of the fight Adam's Infantry, with Vivian's Hussars, had the good fortune to take in some sort the lead. The former followed up their success against the Imperial Guard with an impetuosity which nothing could resist. They left the whole of their dismounted comrades behind them, and seemed to themselves to be completely isolated, when Vivian's Hussars, whom Lord Uxbridge had ordered on, swept past them. For there was seen on the rise of the enemy's ascent a body of Cavalry collected, which gathered strength from one moment to another, and threatened ere long to become again formidable. It was of vital importance that it should be charged and overthrown ere time was given to render it the nucleus of a strong rear guard; and against it, by the Duke's personal command, the Hussar Brigade was directed. Equally these rivals in enterprise and gallantry cheered one another as the British horsemen galloped past, and both caught a fresh impulse from the movement.

Adam's Brigade moved steadily on; Maitland's marched in support of it; and down from their "mountain throne" the rest of the infantry moved in succession. The Cavalry came first into play. It was observed, as they pushed on, that at the bottom of the descent, two squares stood in unbroken order. These were the Battalions of the Guard which had been drawn up to support the advance of the French columns; and though grievously incommoded by the swarms of fugitives which rushed down upon them, they still kept their ranks. A portion of the Cavalry wheeled up and faced them. It is a serious matter to charge a square on which no impression has been made, and probably Vivian, with all his chivalry, would have hesitated to try the encounter, had he not seen that Adam was moving towards the further face of one of these masses with the apparent design of falling upon it. He did not therefore hesitate to let loose a squadron of the 10th, which headed by Major Howard, charged home, and strove, though in vain, to penetrate. The veterans of the French guard were not to be broken. They received the Hussars on their bayonets, cut down many with their fire, and succeeded in retreating in good order, though not without loss. Moreover, just at this moment the battery, which had escaped the general confusion, opened upon the flank of Adam's brigade, while another came galloping across the front of the 18th Hussars, as if seeking some position whence they in like manner might enfilade the line of advance which the British troops had taken. But these latter were instantly charged, the gunners cut down, and the pieces taken; while the former soon fell into the hands of the 52nd regiment, which changed its front for a moment and won the trophy.

Darkness now began to set in, and the confusion in the French ranks became so great as to involve, in some degree, the pursuers in similar disorder. The more advanced Cavalry got so completely intermingled among crowds of fleeing men and horses, that they could neither extricate themselves, nor deal their blows effectually. Moreover, as the night deepened, and the Prussians began to arrive at the scene of action, more than one awkward rencontre took place, which was with difficulty stayed. Nevertheless, the pursuit was not checked. Down their own slope, across the valley, up the face of the enemy's hill, and beyond the station of La Belle Alliance, the British line marched triumphant. They literally walked over the dead and dying, the numbers of which they were continually augmenting. Guns, tumbrils, ammunition-waggons, drivers—the whole matériel, in short, of the dissolved army remained in their possession. Once or twice some battalions endeavoured to withstand them, and a particular corps of "grenadiers à cheval" contrived, amid the wreck of all around, to retain their order. But the battalions were charged, rolled up, and dissolved in succession, while the horsemen effected no higher triumph than to quit the field like soldiers. Still the battle raged at Planchenoit and on the left of it, where Lobau and the young Guard obstinately maintained themselves, till the tide of fugitives from the rear came rolling down upon them, and they too felt that all was lost. Then came the Prussians pouring in. Then, too, the Duke, feeling that the victory was won, caused the order for a general halt to be passed; and regiment by regiment the weary but victorious English lay down upon the position which they had won.

It is well known that throughout this magnificent advance the Duke was up with the foremost of his people. Nothing stopped him—nothing stood in his way. He cheered on Adam's Brigade, and halted beyond its front. He spoke to the skirmishers, and mingled with them, till at last one of his staff ventured to remonstrate against the manner in which he was exposing himself. "You have no business here, sir," was the frank and soldier-like appeal; "we are getting into enclosed ground, and your life is too valuable to be thrown away." "Never mind," replied the Duke, "let them fire away; the battle's won, and my life is of no consequence now." And thus he rode on, regardless of the musketry which whistled about him. The fact is, that though he had put a machine in motion which no resistance could stop, he was still determined to superintend its working to the last moment; and the further the night closed in, the more determined he was to observe for himself whatever dispositions the enemy might have made. Accordingly, keeping a-head of his own line, and mingling, as has just been stated, with the skirmishers, he pushed on till he passed to a considerable distance beyond La Belle Alliance, and there satisfied himself that the rout was complete. At last he reined up his horse, and turned him towards Waterloo. He rode, at this time, well nigh alone. Almost every individual of his personal staff had fallen—either killed or wounded.

Thus was fought, and thus ended, one of the greatest battles of modern times—if its results be taken into account, perhaps the most important battle of which history makes mention. It began amid a drizzling rain, was continued under a canopy of heavy clouds, was lighted up for a few moments by the rays of a setting sun, and did not terminate till after the moon had risen.

ELECTION INTELLIGENCE.—One of the leading organs of the dissenting interests, the Patriot, announces that the Committee of Deputies of the three denominations have issued a circular, recommending to all dissenting electors of the city of London, the metropolitan boroughs, and the adjacent counties, to put to candidates soliciting their support at the ensuing general election the following enquiries, with a view to ascertain their sentiments upon points affecting the civil and religious rights of Protestant Dissenters:—"1. If they are prepared to vote against any grant of public money for religious or ecclesiastical purposes, whether such money is to be appropriated to the established churches of the United Kingdom, or to any of the non-established religious bodies of the country?—2. Whether they will oppose all plans for endowing, either out of the Consolidated Fund, or otherwise, the ministers of any religious body, Roman Catholic or Protestant?—3. Whether they are prepared to oppose any system of general education at the public expense, which either directly or indirectly compels the use of a catechism or creed, and attendance on any particular form of public worship?—4. Whether they will embrace every opportunity of voting for the abolition of church rates and of the ecclesiastical courts?—5. Whether they will, on all occasions, vote in favour of extending equal civil rights to all classes of her Majesty's subjects, so that no person shall be excluded from eligibility for office, place, or service, on account of his religious opinions?"

CAUTION.—In consequence of information we have received, we think it right to call the attention of owners and masters of ships to some of the provisions of the Merchant Seamen's Act, recently passed; especially those clauses, which prescribe a fixed supply of medicines, juices, sugar, &c., which we have reason to think are, in many instances, not complied with. The penalties incurred by non-compliance with the Act are heavy fines and detention of the ship.—Shipping Gazette.

HULLAH'S MUSIC HALL.—The ceremony of laying the foundation stone of Mr. Hullah's music-hall, in Long-acre, was performed yesterday, under the presidency of Lord Morpeth. Prayers having been read, the members of Mr. Hullah's class sang the 100th psalm, with precision and taste; after which, Lord Morpeth performed the ceremony of laying the stone, on which was inscribed merely his name and the date. His lordship then addressed the meeting. He said, that having gone through the mechanical part of a ceremony for the performance of which he had stolen a brief interval from graver, and certainly less harmonious, occupations, he would offer a few observations as to the higher object for which they were met together. Though he had spoken of graver occupations, he did not think that the present undertaking had anything in it of a frivolous character. Its object was the cultivation and propagation of an art which must tend to good, which might pleasantly and profitably employ hours which otherwise would, by many, be spent in alehouse orgies or in midnight brawls. His lordship dilated at some length on the moral and social good which might be expected to result from a more general knowledge of music, the comfort it might carry into the domestic circles, and the spirit of earnestness and, more than all, of unity which it might give to devotional exercises. All must admit, that no man had done one-half so much towards giving a knowledge of music to the million in England as Mr. Hullah, who, besides the musical attainments he imparted, rendered no small service to society by the spirit of unanimity and good-will generated by his classes. His lordship ended a long and eloquent speech by wishing every success to the institution.—Mr. Beaver read an address from the singing classes to Mr. Hullah, expressive of their satisfaction at the course he was adopting, which satisfaction they had proved by subscribing among themselves £600 towards defraying the expenses of the building, a cheque for which sum was handed to Mr. Hullah by Mr. Beaver.—Mr. Hullah returned thanks, hoping that his pupils, with many, of whom he had been connected for six or seven years, in common with himself, would always be actuated by the same principle of unity and co-operation, without which the new hall would be no more than four walls and a roof, void of influence or profit.—The Bishop of Norwich, in a very effective speech proposed a vote of thanks to Lord Morpeth, and alluded to the effects of music upon both soldiers and sailors, asking who did not feel more loyal when he heard the national anthem, of "Rule Britannia," sung or played?—Lord Morpeth thought they could not do better than close the proceedings by requesting Mr. Hullah's pupils to sing "God save the Queen," which was performed in a truly creditable style. After the ceremony, an evening party, in commemoration of the event, was given at the Crown and Anchor Tavern, Strand, where most of Mr. Hullah's pupils were present, as well as many influential personages. There was some good professional singing.—Daily News, June 22.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN SYDNEY.

THE attention of the members of the Church of England resident in Sydney, is earnestly requested to the following statement:—

Of the 2100 members of the Church assigned by the last census to the parish of St. Lawrence, there is accommodation in the parish church for only 750, while beyond the boundaries of the Parish, and annexed to it as an extra parochial side, are the vast suburbs lying on either side of Parramatta-street, embracing the Ultimo Estate, the Glebe, and the district of Chippendale and Redfern, and all having grown to their present importance within the last five years. Within these suburbs, the number of churchmen in which cannot be estimated at less than 1500, there is no public ministration of the ordinances of the Church of England, so that in point of fact their inhabitants must either be alienated from the church of their fathers to other religious communities, or continue in a state of utter irreligion, unless steps promptly and effectually measures be taken to supply them with the means of grace, according to the use and order of their own Church.

As a preliminary step towards more extended efforts, a fund has been commenced for building a CHURCH AT CHIPPENDALE; which fund has now reached nearly £800; one person, with a special view to secure the erection of a building sufficiently spacious and substantial, having provided £500, and the residue having been gathered chiefly by small weekly subscriptions from the poor. The poverty of the inhabitants, who are for the most part mechanics, labourers, and persons of small income, renders it hopeless to expect that the requisite funds can be raised amongst themselves as speedily as the urgent necessity of the case demands; and the parish of St. Lawrence with which they are parochially connected, is still too much embarrassed with claims and difficulties of its own to be able to afford them help. This, therefore, coupled with the fact, that they are mostly, by their occupations as mechanics, labourers, or clerks, connected with, and in some sort necessary to, persons living in the city, has induced the promoters of the undertaking now to appeal most earnestly to the charity and good-will of their fellow-churchmen throughout Sydney for pecuniary aid; in the hope that where there are so many who without injustice to their own parishes, or any burdensome pressure upon their resources, have the ability, there may also be found many who have the will to help this good work forward with a contribution. Should three hundred pounds be raised within the next two months, the building may be begun early in the coming new year. To the Church will afterwards be appended Schools and Parsonage. No portion of the work however will be undertaken until the requisite funds are in hand.

Subscriptions, however small, will be most thankfully received and acknowledged by the Rev. W. H. Walsh, Christ Church Parsonage; Mr. T. Woolley, George-street; Mr. Robert Tooth, Kent Brewery, Parramatta-street; Mr. Austin Wilshire, Botany-street, Redfern; Mr. G. R. Hirst, Queen's-place and Redfern; and Mr. George J. Armitage, Pitt-street South.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND LAY ASSOCIATION FOR NEW SOUTH WALES.

THIRD ANNUAL MEETING.

R. C. LITHERIDGE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the third Annual Meeting of the Association will be held in the Parochial School of St. Lawrence, on Wednesday, the 3rd of November next at half-past five P.M., for the despatch of business, and the election of officers for the year ensuing. The members and friends of the Association are informed, that the business of the meeting will conclude a few minutes before seven o'clock, at which time Evening Prayer will commence at Christ Church, where a Sermon will be preached before the members by the Chaplain, and a collection in aid of the funds of the Association be afterwards made.

By order of the Committee of Management,

THESE are to certify that we, the undersigned masters of ships, now lying in the harbour of Port Jackson, did this day, at the request of Mr. S. Elliott, select from the stock in his store, for the purpose of trying their quality, one tin of each of the following descriptions of preserved fresh provisions, said to be of his manufacture, viz.:—

Beef and vegetables
Mutton and vegetables
Lamb and green peas
Ox-tail soup

And having amply tasted the same, do pronounce them to be fully equal to any article of the kind that has come under our notice. We, therefore, with confidence recommend them to shipmasters or other persons requiring this description of stores.

A tin of beef suet was also opened, and found to be fresh and sweet.

Dated at Sydney, this 25th day of October, A.D. 1847.

FIVE THOUSAND FINE WOOLLED SHEEP,

ONE HALF OF WHICH ARE EWES, WITH LAMBS BY THEIR SIDES, AND THE WHOLE WITH A FULL FLEECE ON.

MR. MORT

Begs to announce to the Settlers of Moreton Bay and other Capitalists, that he is instructed to sell by public auction,

ON TUESDAY, THE 9TH NOVEMBER,

At 12 o'clock,

THE following most valuable Block of fine woolled SHEEP,

WARRANTED SOUND.

And

NEVER TO HAVE BEEN DISEASED,

They consist of—

2552 Ewes, now lambing
1487 Wethers
857 Yearlings, about equal quantities of each sex
80 Fine bred Rams,

And are deliverable at Mr. Mark's Station, Darling Downs, west of Mr. Gore's station.

Mr. MORT, in calling the attention of the public to this lot of Sheep, does not hesitate to pronounce the same as one of the most desirable investments which he has had the pleasure of submitting at auction, the Sheep being

WELL BRED.

The proportion of breeding Ewes being very large.

The Rams being from Mr. White's celebrated flock.

And though last by no means the least, The Sheep having a full fleece upon them, worth at least £750.

And after the completion of the lambing the flock will amount to upwards of 7000 SHEEP.

A MOST SPLENDID PROPERTY

Worthy not only of the attention of those possessing spacious runs, but of every other enterprising squatter who may take advantage of the recent discoveries.

FURTHER,

THE TERMS WILL BE LIBERAL. 6861

THE DARLING DOWNS.

6000 FIRST-CLASS SHEEP,

TOGETHER WITH

AN UNSURPASSED STATION,

WHICH IS GUARANTEED TO CARRY, IN ALL SEASONS AT LEAST 16,000 SHEEP, (AND IN ORDINARY SEASONS FULLY 30,000) IN FLOCKS OF 3500.

MR. MORT

Is instructed to sell by public auction, at his Rooms, George-street, on

TUESDAY, 23RD NOVEMBER,

At 12 o'clock,

AND POSITIVELY WITHOUT RESERVE,

SIX THOUSAND fine woolled and really well-bred sheep—a complete staple, nearly all young, with a full proportion of fat wethers, a large quantity of lambs, as also good rams:—the whole in fine condition, and with the fleece ready for shearing.

The particulars of the Station, which is well known in the district as may be best learned from the following extract taken from the letter of instructions:—

"This run has many advantages which others on the Downs have not, being the last of the open plains country, it has magnificent downs on the one side, the Coorangah Creek with open box forest interspersed with myall clumps on the other. In the driest season it will carry 16,000 sheep, and in ordinary years fully 30,000, there being a great deal of country attached where the water may be considered doubtful in dry seasons; but even this might easily be overcome by digging a few wells, the expense of which would be very trifling, as water is to be got at a short distance from the surface in abundance.

"The run is not to be surpassed by any on the Darling Downs, either in its fattening properties or in an economical point of view, the sheep being at present kept in two flocks.

"The country is similar to the far-famed Jimba run, the property of Thomas Bell, Esq., by which it is bounded on one side; the station of Colin J. M'Kenzie, Esq. (late Henry Dennis's) known as Warra Warra, is another boundary; its distance from Ipswich is about one hundred and thirty miles, seventy of which is across the open downs, joining the main road at the Springs.

"THE IMPROVEMENTS

consist of a verandah cottage of four rooms, just erected, built of slabs, detached kitchen, and servant's room, shepherds' huts, new stock-yard, hurdles complete for the full quantity of sheep, and every convenience attached which ordinary comfort requires.

"The drays and carts, bullocks and horses, extra hurdles, tools, implements, &c., &c., may be taken at a valuation.

"There is a full fleece upon the sheep, which will be the property of the purchaser (subject to actual expenses incurred in shearing, should it be found necessary to shear prior to delivery)—the lambs will also be given in, of which there is a very large increase.

☞ The auctioneer considers comment in the present instance quite unnecessary, and has merely to add that the whole will be sold to the highest bidder. This is the best and the only run for sale in the district, and under the new land regulations will be found a complete fortune.

Terms at sale, or on application at the rooms. 6862

WEDNESDAY, 3RD NOVEMBER.

EXCELLENT MERCANTILE PREMISES AND STORES,

No. 650, LOWER GEORGE-STREET,

Occupied by Mr. J. Johnson and Mr. J. C. Korff,

BETWEEN THE AUSTRALIAN HOTEL AND MR. J. S. HANSON'S PREMISES,

NEAR THE QUEEN'S WHARF,

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION

BY MR. LYONS,

ON WEDNESDAY, 3RD NOVEMBER,

At his Mart, at eleven o'clock precisely.

THIS DESIRABLE PROPERTY occupies 42 perches of Land, being upwards of

A QUARTER OF AN ACRE,

and has a frontage of 64 feet to

LOWER GEORGE-STREET,

by an average depth of 194 feet.

It extends nearly to the Circular Wharf in its present state, which, when carried out to its full extent, will pass between this property and Sydney Cove. The occupants of these premises will then have the convenience of entrance to that wharf—a most important advantage to any one in business connected with shipping—and when the cut through Argyle-street is completed, this part of George-street will have easy communication with the various wharfs in Darling Harbour.

It is therefore evident this is just the spot for a Ship Chandler, Sail-maker, Ship's-smith, Cooper, or any one interested in maritime affairs.

THE HOUSE

Has a terrace in front, with a gateway entrance from George-street, adjoining the "Australian Hotel." It has convenient cellars on the basement, and contains on the ground floor an entrance hall, and two good-sized rooms, used as offices by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Korff. There is a separate entrance from George-street to the part formerly occupied by the late Mr. Hopkins, which contains four spacious stores, on the Ground Floor, of a very considerable depth, with excellent stores under them, suitable for wines, spirits, tallow, or any other goods requiring cool cellarage. The entrance to the lower store is from the yard.

The rooms on the first floor are six in number, with a loft over them.

The yard is of immense depth; it contains coopers' sheds, a three-stall stable, and well of water, &c.

At the lower end of the yard there is

A NEWLY-ERECTED SUBSTANTIAL STONE-BUILT STORE,

of three floors, affording space for the stowage of about six hundred tons of goods. This was built by the late Mr. Hopkins, at an expense of nearly £2000.

Between this store and the Circular Wharf, and adjoining "Kellie's," or the Liverpool Wharf, is from which there will be the convenience of entrance to the Circular Wharf, as soon as it is completed in that direction, and it is now open to the water.

Mr. LYONS strongly recommends the above to the notice of parties having money ready to invest in the purchase of first-rate City Property. The excellent position for business will ever ensure these premises first-class tenants. It is an improving part of the metropolis, and really forms altogether one of the most complete and valuable properties which the Auctioneer has been favoured with instructions to sell for some time past.

Terms at sale. 5765
